Pastor's Pen

WITH PASTOR JENNY

By the time you read this newsletter, we'll be halfway through our Lenten journey. If you've taken on an especially challenging Lenten discipline or practice this season then be encouraged! The hope of Easter Sunday is on the horizon.

We're exploring the concept of forgiveness in depth this Lent and I hope you've had opportunities to reflect on the power of forgiveness in your own life and relationships, as well as the need for forgiveness in the world. We continue to be surrounded by ongoing divisions, deeply embedded cycles of violence and unimaginable suffering.

Perhaps in the face of so much heartache the audacity of forgiveness in our Christian story reminds us of the power of what love can do. Love offered freely. Love that overcomes our fear. Love that brings forth new life even in the midst of death.

This prayer by Walter Brueggemann is a favorite because it reminds us that Easter can be a verb. An action. A way of living. Let every step we take in forgiveness and love, Easter all of creation with joy.

Easter Us - A prayer by Walter Brueggemann

You tamer of chaos and mender of all tears in the canvas of creation,

we ponder your suffering,
 your crown of thorns,
 your garment taken in lottery,
 your mocked life,

and now we throw upon your suffering humiliation,
 the suffering of the world.

You defeater of death, whose power could not hold you,

come in your Easter,
 come in your sweeping victory,
 come in your glorious new life.

Easter us,

salve wounds,
 break injustice,
 bring peace,
 guarantee neighbor,

Easter us in joy and strength.

Be our God, be your true self, Lord of life,

massively turn our life toward your life and away from our anti-neighbor, anti-self deathliness.

Hear our thankful, grateful, unashamed Hallelujah!

Amen.

Happy Easter!

Pastor Jenny

A Note From Pastor Nancy

Thank you to everyone who made the worship service and retirement celebration so meaningful. It was a very special day. I know there were many people who took time, energy and creativity along with heart to pull it all together. I will never forget it. Your kind words and generosity in giving are also much appreciated. You are in our prayers. Warmly, Pastor Nancy and Chuck

Still We Rise at CUMC March 24-31

The Rochester Black Legacy exhibit is a traveling showcase of the key leaders and events that have shaped the local community and its history. Created by Pastor Andre Crockett Sr. and CUMC member Nicole Asong Nfonoyim-Hara, this exhibit has been displayed in locations throughout Rochester and we are honored to host it during Holy Week this year. Several CUMC families are also featured in the exhibit including Joyce and George Gibbs and Lew and Sandra Means. Stay tuned for more information about how you can engage with this powerful piece of history.

Database Transition

For the past few months we have been working on transitioning our church management system from Church Community Builder (CCB) to Planning Center. We currently use CCB to manage contact information, online giving, general communication, and many behind-the-scenes processes. In addition to CCB, we currently use Planning Center to plan our worship services.

What this means for you:

Online giving and donations - The biggest change is with online giving. If you currently give online through CCB, we will soon contact you so we may assist you setting up a new giving profile in Planning Center.

Transaction processing change - Online transactions through CCB are currently processed by BluePay. As part of this transition, online payments through Planning Center will be processed by Stripe. In addition to Stripe offering lower transaction fees, you may notice a change in transaction information on your credit/debit or bank statements.

If you have any questions about this transition, feel free to contact the church office at email@cumethodist.com or 507-289-4019.

Christ UMC named a Bronze Level Bicycle Friendly Business by the League of American Bicyclists

CUMC has earned recognition as a Bronze Level Bicycle Friendly Business from the League of American Bicyclists!

We've joined the movement of over 1,400 local businesses, government agencies, and Fortune 500 companies across the United States in transforming the American workplace to be more welcoming to our customers and employees who bike. So many more have joined or returned to the bike movement during the pandemic, and we are proud to support the health and well-being of our community by being more welcoming to people choosing to bike.

"We're proud to celebrate this round of new and renewing Bicycle Friendly Businesses who are investing their resources to not only build up bicycling in the workplace but in their communities as well," said Bill Nesper, executive director of the League of American Bicyclists. "It takes collaboration to build an America where every person can safely and easily choose to bike, and we applaud Christ UMC pedaling alongside us to power this movement."

CUMC joins a total of 1,480 current BFBs across the country, all united in a commitment to transform American workplaces to be more welcoming to customers and employees who bike. The Bicycle Friendly Business award recognizes an organization's contributions over months and years to the movement to build a Bicycle Friendly America for everyone.

Caring Ministries

Christ United Methodist Church

The large bandage across his left temple covered a wound still oozing, and the scrapes along his forehead and cheek were deep and red. Dennis, my co-worker, laughed off his facial sores after seeing the distressed look in my eyes, offering the excuse that he tripped and fell during his late night walk home that past weekend.

A week later, Dennis didn't laugh off the bruising under his right eye, choosing instead to ignore what appeared to be an obvious sign that he had been purposely harmed.

When Dennis, a fit man in his late-50s, began combing his graying hair to cover marks on his face and calling in sick on a few Monday mornings, I grew worried. Weeks later Dennis confessed to me he had just ended an abusive relationship with a man he had met at a local gay bar.

Dennis and I weren't close friends, but we were more than acquaintances. We shared an easy openness and an intellectual banter, and we swapped stories of the angst of growing into maturity. So when Dennis offered his truth-telling, I held his story with him, acknowledging the courage it takes not to hide our woundedness.

Most of us have a hard time giving others a peek into our woundedness, and for good reason. We don't know who we can trust with such sacred feelings, and we often don't want to admit our hurts even to ourselves. Instead we hide our wounds by presenting an appearance of ease, a not-a-care-in-the-world contentment. It's easier to relate to others by talking about the weather or our recent outings than it is to say, "I'm struggling with what my life requires of me," or "life hasn't always been easy, and I bear the scars of that."

As I reflected on my conversation with Dennis, I came to realize that the wounds we hold within us are where God finds us and where we find one another.

When we have enough self-awareness to know the places in which we have been wounded, the ways in which we are poor, we come to relate to people through those wounded places. Part of the brilliance of compassionate care is bringing to the relationship our own vulnerability as the central part of ourselves. In this way, we create relationships of honesty and healing between authentically imperfect human beings.

This is the message of Easter, isn't it? We learn from Jesus' death and resurrection that when we are brought down, made low, wounded, damaged by the hate and hurts of life, we are saved—made anew—through love.

Service—simply put, doing good to and for another— is our love offering to others. But if acts of service are to result in healing, they require more than our time and effort. They require the capacity to recognize God within the suffering and love we see in ourselves, in others, and in all things. In this way, acts of service become a doorway through which we are always growing into God.

Saturday Noon Meals

The Saturday Noon Meal program continues to provide important support to our community members who are experiencing homelessness and food/financial insecurity. We continue to serve approximately 75 guests each Saturday. Thank you to our dedicated volunteers who arrive each Saturday to prepare a warm and nutritious meal for our guests.

We appreciate the ongoing support from our community partners including Channel One, Community Food Response, Salvation Army, Zumbro Valley Medical Society, Red Lobster and Peoples Food Co-op. We also appreciate CUMC and community members who provide regular donations to our ministry program. We appreciate the donated food items including food containers and books/reading material.

CUMC was fortunate to participate in a presentation on February 7th sponsored by the Rochester Area Foundation focusing on services within our community for those facing homelessness and financial insecurity. Pastors Jenny and Kirkland provided excellent information regarding CUMC's community involvement and support for those within our community facing these challenges.

Please contact Kathy Lombardo at Kathryn.lombardo@gmail.com if you are interested in volunteering or would want additional information regarding the Saturday Noon Meal program. Thank you again for your ongoing support of the SNM ministry program and support for those within our community needing your support.
